We defend freedom in Canada

Founded in 2010, the Justice Centre for Constitutional Freedoms is a registered charity and Canada's leading defender of civil liberties.

You can help us defend the free society today.

Connect with us

Learn more about our work at one of our many events across the country. We host public meetings and networking receptions to inform you about threats to the free society, and to answer your questions.

The Justice Centre also hosts annual George Jonas Freedom Award events in recognition of courageous individuals who have made significant contributions to the defence of freedom in Canada.

Justice Centre
for Constitutional Freedoms

About the Justice Centre

Our vision: a free society where governments uphold human dignity by respecting Charter rights and freedoms, and where Canadians can realize their potential and fulfil their aspirations.

Our mission: to defend the constitutional rights and freedoms of all Canadians through litigation and education.

We defend the fundamental freedoms of conscience and religion, expression, peaceful assembly, and association. We uphold Canadians' right to mobility, security, and privacy. We protect parents' right and responsibility to raise, educate, and guide their children. We defend equality before the law, regardless of race, ethnicity, political beliefs, or other personal characteristics.

We believe that all Canadians are responsible for actively participating in the democratic process to defend and promote freedom in Canada.

"I am grateful every day for the thousands of Canadians who make our mission possible."

John Carpay, B.A., LL.B.
President and Founder

Impact through litigation

The Justice Centre has provided lawyers to hundreds of Canadians to defend their rights and freedoms before courts, tribunals, and regulatory bodies. Here are just two examples of what our donors have made possible:

Veteran Jeffrey Evely challenges $28,872 ticket for walking in the woods

In a significant victory for the Charter, the Nova Scotia Supreme Court ruled in April 2026 that the province-wide ban on entering wooded areas violated citizens' right to move freely within Canada.

Police suppress the peaceful Freedom Convoy

The Federal Court ruled that the Trudeau cabinet used the Emergencies Act illegally to violently suppress the peaceful Freedom Convoy protest in 2022, and that freezing bank accounts was an unjustified violation of Charter rights and freedoms.

Impact through education

Reports: We produce in-depth reports on privacy rights, freedom from state surveillance, harmful government action, and other topics related to rights and freedoms. Explore our reports at www.jccf.ca/reports.

Advocacy: Our non-partisan advocacy campaigns inform the public about threats to the free society, urging elected officials at all levels of government to respect the Charter. Over the years, we have mobilized tens of thousands of Canadians to speak out against the Online Harms Act, the Strong Borders Act, and other harmful legislation. Explore our advocacy at www.jccf.ca/petitions.

High school courses on freedom: We educate the next generation about the free society through our high school courses on the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

One parent said this about our Exploring Freedom of Expression course: "This is probably the most significant course our son has taken. Useful and necessary."
