

Contribute to the Justice Centre in a powerful way

Securities and other financial assets

By gifting your stocks, shares, funds, trusts, RRSPs, AirMiles, or a part of your estate, you may experience significant tax benefits and will contribute to the legal and educational efforts of the Justice Centre in a lasting way. Please reach out to our Development Director to have a conversation about creative ways to secure freedom for the future of Canada.

Stocks & Shares

Donating your publicly listed stocks, shares, or securities is one of the easiest and most effective ways to give, while providing you with significant tax advantages.

Endowment Funds

Creating an endowment fund in your lifetime or through your estate will connect future generations of your family to our legal and educational efforts.

Charitable Remainders Trust

Creating a charitable remainder trust allows you to transfer property into a trust that allows you to retain a life interest in the property while also making an irrevocable gift of residual interest to our legal and educational efforts.

RRSPs or RRFIs

Donating your Registered Retirement Savings Plan or your Registered Retirement Income Fund allows you to retain the full benefit of your retirement savings while you are alive, and the donation can be revoked at any time if

Wills

Donating a bequest allows you to make a major charitable contribution that may not be possible for you during your lifetime while also reducing the taxes payable on your estate.

AirMiles

Sending the Justice Centre your AirMiles keeps our lawyers and educators in the air so that they can defend Canadians' rights and freedoms from coast to coast.
